St. Petersburg, FL, January 12, 2009: Solamatrix, Inc. is pleased to announce its new affiliation with Windowtinting.com Training School. Based in San Diego, California, Windowtinting.com offers a full-range of hands-on window film training seminars for automotive, architectural and safety/security film dealers. Whether someone is just getting started and trying to learn a new trade or has been an installer for years, there is a perfect curriculum tailored to meet their needs.

Windowtinting.com was established in 1997 by Robert Doan, who is the owner, a recognized veteran in the industry and a longstanding member of the IWFA (International Window Film Association.) Their training facility is state-of-the-art and equipped to help students master the art and techniques of the window film trade. “Our students learn installation tricks, business management tips and other valuable information that will help them to become more efficient and thus more profitable,” says Robert Doan, owner.

“Windowtinting.com provides tremendous value to its students and we are very pleased to be affiliated with them,” says Bill Stewart, Solamatrix national sales and operations manager. “Regardless of the economic situation that our dealers are facing, Robert can provide beneficial installation and business advice.”
